

Architecture Programs in Sevilla

A purpose-built, faculty-centered study abroad experience in one of Europe's most architecturally layered cities.

About Education Abroad Sevilla

Education Abroad Sevilla is a Spain-based provider with over two decades of experience supporting faculty-led architecture programs for U.S. universities.

We coordinate everything from pre-departure recruitment to on-the-ground logistics, allowing faculty to focus on academics. Each program, including its course selection, is customized in collaboration with the partner institution to align with its curriculum, credit requirements, academic calendar, goals, and student needs.

Dedicated Faculty

Ángel Martínez García-Posada, Ph.D.
Architecture Academic Director

- Tenured Associate Professor of Architectural Design, University of Seville.
- Co-Director & Curator of the XVI Spanish Biennial of Architecture and Urbanism.

Pedro Mena Vega, Ph.D.
Associate Academic Coordinator

- Lecturer, Huckabee College of Architecture, Texas Tech University.
- Texas Tech Sevilla faculty since 2019 and author of Una arquitectura del perímetro.

Academic Model & Sample Courses

Using Sevilla as an active field of study, undergraduate and graduate architecture programs can be customized around 12–15 in-person credit hours. Options may include a six-credit design studio and three-credit courses in contemporary issues, media, construction, and related areas. Academic credit and participating faculty appointments are administered and approved by the home institution.

Sample 6-credit Design Studios

- Architecture and Public Space
- Time and Territory

Sample 3-credit Courses

- Mapping the City, Drawing Architecture
- European Cities
- Environmental Strategies
- Structures and Envelopes

Studio Space & Architecture Facilities

- 30+ meters of pinnable display walls
- 32 full-size studio desks (1.5 × 1 m)
- Large-format plotter and professional printing equipment
- Six classrooms and dedicated faculty offices
- Dedicated critique and collaboration spaces

Why Sevilla for Architecture

Sevilla offers an exceptional architectural landscape shaped by centuries of cultural layers. Roman foundations, Islamic urban principles, Mudéjar craftsmanship, Gothic and Renaissance interventions, and contemporary design coexist in a dense, walkable city center.

Guest Architects & Creative Collaborators

Past programs have featured guest architects, professors, critics, designers, illustrators, and artists through lectures, workshops, studio critiques, and professional reviews.

Selected Past Collaborators

Architecture & Urbanism: Begoña de Abajo, Bosch y Capdeferro, María Carrascal Pérez, Jacobo García Germán, José María Sánchez García, Serrano + Baquero, and Sol89.

Design & Visual Culture: Estudio Neuma, Ricardo Barquín Molero, nanalopdesign, ceciliajé, and Irene Infantes.

Sample Semester Pricing

Sample fall semester packages combine academic instruction, local professional engagement, housing, cultural programming, and field travel. Designed for cohorts of 12–15 students, fees range from $14,280 to $21,260 per student, with each model adaptable to the partner institution's priorities.

Host-Family Package

$14,280 per student*

- Host-family housing
- Full room and board
- Core excursion package

Dorm + Extended Travel

$21,260 per student*

- Individual dorm room
- Weekday meal plan, Monday-Friday
- Core excursions plus Madrid and Lisbon

Included in Both

- Academics: 12 credit hours of coursework; guest architects, designers, artists, and professional reviewers.
- Sevilla: Orientation, starter bus pass, Cathedral and Alcázar visits, Itálica and group meal.
- Travel: Córdoba day trip, overnight Granada excursion, and four days in Barcelona, with admission to the Mezquita-Catedral, the Alhambra, the Sagrada Família, and other major sites.

Next Steps

1. Share your curricular goals or sample syllabus.
2. We'll develop a customized academic model and budget draft.
3. Together we'll finalize program details and support student recruitment and pre-departure efforts.

We're happy to schedule a short call to explore possibilities.

- Get in touch:

info@educationabroadsevilla.com

